The two-step flow of communication

Lazarsfeld argued that media effects are mediated by opinion leaders. People are influenced more by peers than by mass media directly.